

46-606-01 Advanced Practice in Clinical Neuropsychology

Learning Outcomes

Last Updated: October 6, 2017

(Sa171006-5.5.2)

Learning Outcomes	Characteristics of a University of Windsor Graduate
This is a sentence completion exercise. At the end of the course, the successful student will know and be able to:	A U of Windsor graduate will have the ability to demonstrate
A. Express the concepts and practices that underlie neuropsychological testing, neuropsychological theories, and ethical practices related to neuropsychological assessment	A. the acquisition, application and integration of knowledge
B. Research and present a topic concerning professional practice in clinical neuropsychology that is of a quality suitable for a graduate course	B. research skills, including the ability to define problems and access, retrieve and evaluate information (information literacy)
C. Compare and contrast independent practice with the practice of neuropsychology in organized, multidisciplinary settings	C. critical thinking and problem-solving skills
D. Select, administer, score, and interpret the results of neuropsychological tests and write a consumer-oriented neuropsychological assessment report that clearly communicates the major findings and their implications	D. literacy and numeracy skills
E. Express common difficult or “tricky” ethical situations that arise in the practice of clinical neuropsychology and articulate a way to resolve or address these situations	E. responsible behaviour to self, others and society
F. Appropriately seek and incorporate feedback from the supervising instructor and from classmates and relay results to the client, the client’s family if appropriate, and the referral source	F. interpersonal and communications skills
G. Contributes to personal and professional development of other students in the class by offering constructive comments on other students’ cases and offering support and information as appropriate	G. teamwork, and personal and group leadership skills
H.	H. creativity and aesthetic appreciation
I. Articulate next steps to increased independence in practice and registration as a psychologist.	I. the ability and desire for continuous learning