Women's Studies Student Association

The Women's Studies Student Association is an exciting club for any students interested in Women's Studies. All students are welcome.

Mission Statement:

The association draws together a group of individuals with an interest in Women's Studies and feminist theory and practice. As a club, we are committed to the exchange of information, networking and increasing the visibility of the Women's Studies program on campus and in the community.

Goals and Objectives:

- to promote the presence of Women's Studies on campus
- to have an open exchange of information and discussion of current topics of special interest to women
- to have all discussion carried out in a non judgemental manner with a safe space for all individuals

Get involved by contacting one of the following student members:

Women's Studies Courses

Introductory Courses:

53-100 Women in Canadian Society

An introduction to Women's Studies of an interdisciplinary nature, designed to illustrate and account for the position of women in Canadian society. Possible areas of enquiry include health, law, politics, history, women and work, representation of women in literature, Canadian women artists and musicians.

53-106 Women and Religion

A comparative, feminist-critical exploration of the status of women and women's religious experience in selected examples of traditional (e.g., Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism) and non-traditional (e.g., Goddess religions, Wicca, Feminism) religions, ancient and modern.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or a Social Science credit.

53-120 Gal Pals: Women and Friendship Over Time

This course examines women's friendships across a wide sweep of time and place. Through discussion, reading, and films we will explore topics such as the meaning of friendship for women, how women's friendships have been portrayed in literature and film, the link between friendship and social activism for women, and the political meanings of women's friendship in cultures resistant to woman-centred consciousness.

53-130 Imagining Women

This course examines a broad cross-section of historical and contemporary representations of women in myth, popular culture, and various media -- literature, film and television, the fine arts, journalism, and advertising. The significance of such powerful stereotypes as the Femme Fatale, the fallen woman, witch, goddess, vamp, and "angel in the house" will be explored. The politics and aesthetics/poetics involved in the construction of sexual/gender identity and difference will constitute a primary focus of discussion. The student will be introduced to feminist and gender-related theories of representation.

This course may taken for either an Arts or a Social Science credit.

Intermediate Courses:

53-200 History of Women's Movements in North America

An exploration of the collective action of women in the past and present in North America. Areas of study may include women's involvement with the temperance, civil rights, suffrage, trade union, environmental, reproductive rights, and women's liberation movements.

Cross-listed as History 43-251.*

53-201 Women and Diversity

Examines the intersection of gender with other oppressions experienced by groups such as women of colour, working-class women, lesbians, and disabled women. The perspective taken is the critical analysis of gender offered by feminism(s).

Prerequisite: One Women's Studies course. Cross-listed as Sociology 48-251.*

53-215 Religion and Sexuality

The role of religion in shaping, positively and negatively, the understanding of sexuality and sexual roles. The impact of current re-evaluations of bodliness and feminine-masculine stereotyping on societal views of marriage, premarital sex, homosexuality, etc.

This course may taken for either an Arts or a Social Science credit.

53-220 Biology of Sex and Gender

This course explores the notion of human reproductive "strategies" within a framework of evolutionary biology. It describes the biological underpinnings of sex and gender issues, exploring sex and sexual attributes as continuous variables. Topics include physiological, endochinological, and phylogenetic aspects of sex in humans in conjunction with highly significant environmental and cultural influences. Collectively, these features shape human sexual behaviours and gender roles. Problems of gender chauvinism and biological determinism are discussed.

Prerequisite: OAC Biology, or any university-level Biology course, or consent of the instructor. This course is a science credit for Arts and Social Science majors or a social science credit for Science majors.

53-225 Feminism and Spirituality

An introduction to the various dimensions of feminist theology. These include: post-Christian feminism; feminist hermeneutics; liberation theology; and the stories, both fiction and non-fiction, of women's lives. Students are encouraged to study the material in relation to their own lives and values.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or a Social Science credit.

53-230 Gender and Moral Choice

This course examines how gender affects personal and public definitions of moral problems and their resolution. Issues such as reproductive choices, childrearing, poverty, and war will be used to explore these ideas.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or a Social Science credit.

53-240 Helpmates, Harlots, Deliverers, and Disciples: Women and the Bible

A feminist-critical examination of selected passages from the Hebrew bible (Tanak/Old Testament), the Apocrypha, and/or the New Testament, focusing on gender ideology and the depiction of the legal, social, and religious status of women in ancient Israel, early Judaism, and/or early Christianity. The course will also explore the ways in which biblical gender ideology continues to shape attitudes toward women in contemporary societies.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or a Social Science credit.

53-250 Women, Movement, and Performance

This course explores how women come to know themselves and others through their bodies, gender and racial stereotypes, body image and body language, women's use of space, the gendered construction of sport, and movement as a cultural message.

Prerequisite: one Women's Studies course.

53-260 Women in the Global Economy

This course introduces students to gender-sensitive analyses of the role of women in the global economy. Course materials cover the place of women in the international division of labour, the role of women in export-oriented industries in the "Third World," and women as "homeworkers" in the First and Third World. Students will utilize relevant empirical material to develop critical thinking and an understanding of gender inequalities in the "development process."

Prerequisites: at least Semester 3 standing. Suitable for students with no background in Economics.

53-270 Nags, Housewives, and Sluts: Language and Women's Place

This course makes visible the sexism hidden in the English language. Students begin by examining the relationship between language and thought. Other topics include gender differences in the use of language, the politics of naming, gender and metaphor, and humour. Students are encouraged to develop their understanding of course principles using practical exercises.

Pre-requisites: Semester 3 or above standing. This course may taken for either an Arts or a Social Science credit.

Upper-Level Courses:

53-300 Women, Knowledge, and Reality

An exploration of various feminist theories about knowledge and reality that inform and are informed by scholarship in Women's Studies. Students examine how gender might affect identity, reasoning, objectivity, and evidence, and in turn how such variations might affect feminist political practices.

Pre-requisites: Two of 53-200, 53-201, 53-310, 34-236, 34-255; or consent of the instructor. This course may taken for either an Arts or a Social Science credit. Cross-listed as Philosophy 34-354.*

53-301 Frameworks for Feminist Research

An exploration of the diverse approaches to feminist research in a variety of fields. Students will examine the core questions and approaches that various disciplines bring to the study of women. Prerequisites: two of 53-200, 53-201, or 53-210, or consent of the instructor.

53-310 Women and the Law

This course examines the relationship between gender inequality and the legal system. Topics include abortion, marriage, divorce, custody, equal pay, sexual harassment, rape, pornography, and prostitution. Students are introduced to basic legal research tools, such as statutes, regulations, cases, and legal literature.

Prerequisites: two Women's Studies courses

53-320 Women, Power, and Environments

This course focuses on environmental issues as they affect women across cultures. It provides a feminist critical analysis of the power relations in modern societies that cause environmental degradation and examines the theories, policies, and institutions that contribute to unsustainable practices. Emphasis is placed on the women-nature debate within various environmental social movements and the historical role women have played as activists.

Prerequisite: completion of at least ten courses in any program. Cross-listed as Planning 50-320.*

53-330 Victims, Survivors, and Warriors: Violence in the Lives of Women and Girls

An interdisciplinary exploration of violence against women and girls locally and globally. This course will explore the power of language to shape our understanding of issues, the many forms of subtle and explicit violence, the impact of violence on the individual and the status of women, and the creative resistance of women and girls, among other issues.

Pre-requisites: Two Women's Studies courses and at least semester 4 standing.

53-340 Women and War

This course examines war through women's eyes, including home fronts during wartime in both combat and non-combat zones, women in combat, the effects of various military tactics and strategies on women, war crimes against women, women refugees, women's activism on war-related issues, and media coverage of women and war.

Prerequisites: One 200-level Women's Studies course or 45-260 or consent of the instructor.

53-347 Abuse in the Family

Examines all aspects of abuse and violence in the family. The primary focus is generalist social work practice family intervention in cases of abusive or violence, and on societal provision for sheltered separation and family reconstitution of dissolution.

Open to senior students. Social Work majors will be given registration priority. Cross-listed as 47-347.*

53-350 Special Topics

The content will vary to reflect student need and faculty expertise and may be offered as a cross-listed course with other programs. (Prerequisite: consent of the instructor.)

Note: Students may take more than one section of 53-350 for credit.

53-360 Women at Work

This course examines women's work experiences in the workplace and in the household from a critical perspective. Topics include the division of labour by sex, the value of women's labour, sexual harassment, and women's union participation.

Prerequisite: 71-140 or 53-100 and Semester 4 or above standing. Cross-listed as 71-347.

53-370 Mothering and Motherhood

This course examines Western society's ideas of motherhood, in particular the social construction of "good" and "bad" mothers, from an interdisciplinary perspective. Difference associated with class, race, ethnicity and sexual preference will be considered.

Pre-requisites: three Women's Studies courses and semester 4 or above standing. Cross-listed as Social Work 47-370.*

53-380 Feminist Literary Dimensions of the Hebrew Bible

A feminist exploration of the Hebrew Bible as a literary text. Using the work of major feminist biblical scholars, the course will explore rhetorical strategies, characterization, narrative voice, themes, motifs and other literary dimensions of the Hebrew Bible to see how they contribute to the production of gender ideologies in the text. Feminist strategies for rereading, exposing and deconstructing male-authored images of women and femaleness in biblical texts will be examined. (Prerequisite: 53-240)

This course may taken for either an Arts or a Social Science credit.

53-390 Third-Wave Feminisms: Generation X, Feminism, and the 21st Century

This course investigates the meaning and importance of third-wave feminisms through literature, zines, websites, and “manifestos” written by, for, and about young women. Specific topics of interest are young women’s activism with respect to the environment, globalization, and the media, as well as their efforts to confront racism, sexism, and classism.

Pre-requisites: Two Women’s Studies courses.

53-400 Seminar

The course involves the intensive study of a problem or theory related to women which will result in a Major essay. Students will work on individual topics of interest and will be supervised and assisted by a faculty member.

Open only to fourth-year students. Prerequisites: 53-300 and 53-301.

53-410 Women in Protest

This course examines women at the forefront of protest in historical and contemporary contexts. It analyzes gendered constructs of protest and social and political change. Students will study the role of women in protest movements such as suffrage, reproductive rights, anti-racism, labour rights, environmental justice, anti-globalization, and nationalist and religious movements. Case studies are explored in detail, with particular emphasis on primary-source material from women activists themselves. These studies are complemented by an examination of feminist, social movement, and protest theories.

Pre-requisites: Two of 53-200, 53-300, 53-301, 53-320, or consent of the instructor.

53-463 History of Sexuality in North America

The cultural ideology, social regulation, and experience of reproduction and sexual relations, with an emphasis on women, from 1600 to the present. Topics include interracial relationships, abortion and contraception, sex and social class, sex and slavery, same-sex relationships, and modern sexuality and feminism.

Prerequisite: One of 43-249, 43-250, or 43-251/53-200. Restricted to History and Women’s Studies majors and other students with at least semester 5 standing and permission of the instructor. Cross-listed as History 43-463.*

53-470 Counselling Girls and Women

Examines the principles, processes, and techniques utilized in counselling girls and women as a component of generalist social work practice. Structural factors in the social context which affect the experience of girls and women of all ages as well as aspects of their development are considered in the assessment of obstacles that may result in the need for counselling from a generalist social worker. Individual, group, and family counselling that empowers girls and women to overcome obstacles and fulfil their potential in the context of social and cultural diversity is emphasized.

Pre-requisites: 47-304, 47-337. Cross-listed as 47-470.*

*A cross-listed course is a course offered by two departments at the same time.

Women's Studies majors are encouraged to enrol under the Women's Studies section (53-), but may enrol in the other department's section if the Women's Studies section is full and it will still count towards their major requirements.

These courses may be taken as an Arts credit or a Social Science credit. Students wishing to make these courses an Arts credit must come to the Women's Studies office and complete a DARS Exemption form.

Please visit the Women's Studies website for complete course descriptions and pre-requisites.
