Dr. Anne Forrest is the Director of Women's Studies. You may make an appointment with Dr. Forrest through Ms. Danielle Reaume, Secretary of Women's Studies either in person, by phone, or by e-mail. Ms. Reaume is available to assist you from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The office will be closed for lunch one hour per day.

Women's Studies Website & Student Resources

The Women's Studies website can be found at www.uwindsor.ca/womens. This website contains the following information plus much more:

- program information, such as degree requirements
- course descriptions and schedules
- instructor office information and e-mail address
- event information
- scholarship information
- teaching assistant job postings
- a student resource page which contains course website links, course outlines, printable forms, and useful University of Windsor websites

Students may access computers in many places on campus, such as Leddy Library and the Computer Centre (attached to CAW Student Centre). Also, students can visit the Women's Studies office for posted information on the bulletin boards.

Women's Studies Advisory Committee

The Women's Studies Advisory Committee is comprised of faculty members and staff from across the University who may be available for student consultation throughout the Fall and Winter terms. Please contact the Women's Studies Secretary or visit the website for office hours, if any. Please note: Dr. Forrest is the primary contact for Women's Studies inquiries and Dr. Cassano is the primary contact for Social Work inquiries.

Women's Studies Student Association

The Women's Studies Student Association is an exciting club for any students interested in Women's Studies. All students are welcome.

Mission Statement:

The association draws together a group of individuals with an interest in Women's Studies and feminist theory and practice. As a club, we are committed to the exchange of information, networking and increasing the visibility of the Women's Studies program on campus and in the community.

Goals and Objectives:

- to promote the presence of Women's Studies on campus
- to have an open exchange of information and discussion of current topics of special interest to women
- to have all discussion carried out in a non judgemental manner with a safe space for all individuals

Get involved by contacting one of the following student members:

WOMEN'S STUDIES COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

New Curriculum – as of Fall 2006

53-100: Women in Canadian Society

An introduction to Women's Studies of an interdisciplinary nature, designed to illustrate and account for the position of women in Canadian society. Possible areas of enquiry include health, law, politics, history, women and work, representation of women in literature, Canadian women artists and musicians.

53-106: Women and Religion

A comparative, feminist-critical exploration of the status of women and women's religious experience in selected examples of traditional (e.g., Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism) and non-traditional (e.g., Goddess religions, Wicca, Feminism) religions, ancient and modern.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or Social Science credit.

53-120: Gal Pals: Women and Friendship

This course examines a diverse range of women's friendships. Through discussion, reading, and films we will explore topics such as the meaning of friendship for women, how women's friendships have been portrayed in literature and film, the link between friendship and social activism for women, and the political meanings of women's friendship in cultures resistant to woman-centered consciousness.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or Social Science credit.

53-130: Imagining Women

This course examines a broad cross-section of historical and contemporary representations of women in myth, popular culture, and various media -- literature, film and television, the fine arts, journalism, and advertising. The significance of such powerful stereotypes as the Femme Fatale, the fallen woman, witch, goddess, vamp, and "angel in the house" will be explored. The politics and aesthetics/poetics involved in the construction of sexual/gender identity and difference will constitute a primary focus of discussion. The student will be introduced to feminist and gender-related theories of representation.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or Social Science credit.

53-200: History of Women's Movements in North America

An exploration of the collective action of women in the past and present in North America. Areas of study may include women's involvement with the temperance, civil rights, suffrage, trade union, environmental, reproductive rights, and women's liberation movements.

Cross-listed as History 43-251.*

53-201: Women, Sexuality, and Social Justice

This course examines the personal and cultural meanings of women's sexual identities in Canada today. Students consider how these identities are created and experienced in conjunction with other identities such as race/ethnicity, social class, and (dis)ability and how women challenge the personal, social, political, and economic inequities that continue to be based on these identities. Students are encouraged to analyze how their beliefs and behaviours are shaped by heterosexual privilege.

Pre-requisite: 53-100 or consent of the instructor.

Cross-listed as Sociology 48-251.*

53-202: Women, Race, and Social Justice

This course examines the personal and cultural meanings of women's racial and ethnic identities in Canada today. Students consider how these identities are created and experienced in conjunction with other identities such as sexuality, social class, and (dis)ability and how women challenge the personal, social, political, and economic inequities that continue to be based on these identities. Students are encouraged to analyze how their beliefs and behaviours are shaped by white privilege.

Pre-requisite: 53-100 or consent of the instructor.

53-215: Religion and Sexuality

The role of religion in shaping, positively and negatively, the understanding of sexuality and sexual roles. The impact of current re-evaluations of bodiliness and feminine-masculine stereotyping on societal views of marriage, premarital sex, homosexuality, etc.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or Social Science credit.

53-220: Women's Bodies, Women's Health

This course examines and critiques commonly cited biological evidence in support of sex differences and male superiority, including research on anatomy, genetics, hormones, and differential brain functioning. Students explore the social, cultural, and political meanings of the female body and consider how these understandings influence medical and non-medical definitions of “health” for women. Students investigate how sexism, classism, racism, ageism, and homophobia shape how individuals think about and value different female bodies. This course will satisfy a Science requirement for non-Science majors.

Pre-requisite: One Women's Studies (53-) course.

53-225: Feminism and Spirituality

This course explores the impact of feminism on the spiritual lives of women and discusses women's involvement in defining and designing new spiritualities that both empower women and enhance communal life.

This course may be taken for Arts or Social Science credit.

You may apply to take this course at Athabasca University

53-230: Gender and Moral Choice

This course examines how gender affects personal and public definitions of moral problems and their resolution. Issues such as reproductive choices, childrearing, poverty, and war will be used to explore these ideas.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or Social Science credit.

Pre-requisites: Semester 3 or above standing and one Women's Studies (53-) course or consent of the instructor.

53-240: Helpmates, Harlots, Deliverers, and Disciples: Women and the Bible

A feminist-critical examination of selected passages from the Hebrew bible (Tanak/Old Testament), the Apocrypha, and/or the New Testament, focusing on gender ideology and the depiction of the legal, social, and religious status of women in ancient Israel, early Judaism, and/or early Christianity. The course will also explore the ways in which biblical gender ideology continues to shape attitudes toward women in contemporary societies.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or Social Science credit.

53-250: Women, Movement, and Performance

This course explores how women come to know themselves and others through their bodies, gender and racial stereotypes, body image and body language, women's use of space, the gendered construction of sport, and movement as a cultural message.

Pre-requisite: One Women's Studies (53-) course.

53-260: Women and Globalization

This course introduces students to gender-sensitive analyses of the role of women in the global economy. Course materials cover the place of women in the international division of labour, the role of women in export-oriented industries in the “Third World,” and women as “homeworkers” in the First and Third World. Students will utilize relevant empirical material to develop critical thinking and an understanding of gender inequalities in the “development process.”

Pre-requisites: At least Semester 3 standing.

Note: suitable for students with no background in Economics.

53-270: Nags, Housewives, and Sluts: Language and Women's Place

This course makes visible the sexism hidden in the English language. Students begin by examining the relationship between language and thought. Other topics include gender differences in the use of language, the politics of naming, gender and metaphor, and humour. Students are encouraged to develop their understanding of course principles using practical exercises.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or Social Science credit.

Pre-requisites: Semester 3 or above standing and one Women's Studies (53-) course or consent of the instructor.

53-300: Women, Knowledge, and Reality

An exploration of feminist theories about knowledge and reality that inform and are informed by scholarship in Women's Studies. Students examine how gender might affect identity, reasoning, objectivity, and evidence, and in turn how such variations might affect feminist political practices.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or Social Science credit.

Pre-requisites: Two courses at the 200-level or above from Women's Studies (53-) and/or Philosophy (34-).

Cross-listed as Philosophy 34-300.*

53-301: Frameworks for Feminist Research

An exploration of the diverse approaches to feminist research in a variety of fields. Students will examine the core questions and approaches that various disciplines bring to the study of women.

Pre-requisites: Two courses at the 200-level or above from Women's Studies (53-) or consent of the instructor.

53-310: Women and the Law

This course examines the relationship between gender inequality and the legal system. Topics include abortion, marriage, divorce, custody, equal pay, sexual harassment, rape, pornography, and prostitution. Students are introduced to basic legal research tools, such as statutes, regulations, cases, and legal literature.

Pre-requisites: Two Women's Studies (53-) courses.

53-320: Women, Power, and Environments

This course focuses on environmental issues as they affect women across cultures. It provides a feminist critical analysis of the power relations in modern societies that cause environmental degradation and examines the theories, policies, and institutions that contribute to unsustainable practices. Emphasis is placed on the women-nature debate within various environmental social movements and the historical role women have played as activists.

Pre-requisite: Semester 3 or above standing.

Cross-listed as Planning 50-320.*

53-330: Victims, Survivors, and Warriors: Violence in the Lives of Women and Girls

An interdisciplinary exploration of violence against women and girls locally and globally. The course will explore the power of language to shape our understanding of issues, the many forms of subtle and explicit violence, the impact of violence on the individual and the status of women, and the creative resistance of women and girls, among other issues.

Pre-requisites: Two Women's Studies (53-) courses and at least semester 4 standing.

53-340: Women, War, and Peace

This course examines war and peace through women's eyes, including home fronts during wartime in both combat and non-combat zones, women in combat, the effects of various military tactics and strategies on women, war crimes against women, women refugees, women's activism on war-related issues, peace activism, and media coverage of women and war as well as women and peace.

Pre-requisite: One 200-level Women's Studies (53-) course or 45-260 or consent of the instructor.

53-347: Abuse in the Family

Examines aspects of abuse and violence in the family. The primary focus is generalist social work family intervention in cases of abusive or violence, and on societal provision for sheltered separation and family reconstitution of dissolution.

Open to senior students. Social Work majors or combined Social Work/Women's Studies majors will be given registration priority.

Cross-listed as Social Work 47-347.*

53-350: Special Topics

The content will vary to reflect student need and faculty expertise and may be offered as a cross-listed course with other programs.

Pre-requisite: At least semester 4 standing.

Note: Students may take more than one section of 53-350 for credit.

53-360: Women at Work

This course examines women's work experiences in the workplace and in the household from a critical perspective. Topics include the division of labour by sex, the value of women's labour, sexual harassment, and women's union participation.

Pre-requisite: 71-140 or 53-100 and Semester 4 or above standing.

Cross-listed as Business 71-347.*

53-370: Mothering and Motherhood

This course examines Western society's ideas of motherhood, in particular the social construction of "good" and "bad" mothers, from an interdisciplinary perspective. Differences associated with class, race, ethnicity and sexual preference will be considered.

Pre-requisites: Semester 4 or above standing and two Women's Studies (53-) courses.

Cross-listed as Social Work 47-370.*

53-380: Feminist Literary Dimensions of the Hebrew Bible

A feminist exploration of the Hebrew Bible as a literary text. Using the work of major feminist biblical scholars, the course will explore rhetorical strategies, characterization, narrative voice, themes, motifs and other literary dimensions of the Hebrew Bible to see how they contribute to the production of gender ideologies in the text. Feminist strategies for rereading, exposing and deconstructing male-authored images of women and femaleness in biblical texts will be examined.

This course may be taken for either an Arts or Social Science credit.

Pre-requisite: 53-240 or consent of the instructor.

53-390: Third-Wave Feminisms: Generation X, Feminism, and the 21st Century

This course investigates the meaning and importance of third-wave feminisms through literature, zines, websites, and "manifestos" written by, for, and about young women. Specific topics of interest are young women's activism with respect to the environment, globalization, and the media, as well as their efforts to confront racism, sexism, and classism.

Pre-requisites: Two Women's Studies courses.

53-400: Seminar

The course involves the study of a problem or theory related to women or gender. Students will select individual topics of interest and will be supervised and assisted by a faculty member.

Open only to fourth-year students.

Pre-/Co-requisites: 53-300 and 53-301 or consent of the instructor.

53-410: Women in Protest

This course examines women at the forefront of protest in historical and contemporary contexts. It analyzes gendered constructs of protest and social and political change. Students will study the role of women in protest movements such as suffrage, reproductive rights, anti-racism, labour rights, environmental justice, anti-globalization, and nationalist and religious movements. Case studies are explored in detail, with particular emphasis on primary-source material from women activists themselves. These studies are complemented by an examination of feminist, social movement, and protest theories.

Pre-requisites: 53-200 and one 300-level Women's Studies (53-) course or consent of the instructor.

53-463: History of Sexuality in North America

The cultural ideology, social regulation, and experience of reproduction and sexual relations, with an emphasis on women, from 1600 to the present. Topics include interracial relationships, abortion and contraception, sex and social class, sex and slavery, same-sex relationships, and modern sexuality and feminism.

Pre-requisites: One of 43-249, 43-250, or 43-251/53-200. Restricted to History and Women's Studies majors and other students with at least semester 5 standing and permission of the instructor.

Cross-listed as History 43-463.*

53-470: Counselling Girls and Women

Examines the principles, processes, and techniques utilized in counselling girls and women as a component of generalist social work practice. Structural factors in the social context which affect the experience of girls and women of all ages as well as aspects of their development are considered in the assessment of obstacles that may result in the need for counselling from a generalist social worker. Individual, group, and family counselling that empowers girls and women to overcome obstacles and fulfill their potential in the context of social and cultural diversity is emphasized.

Pre-requisites: 47-304, 47-336, 47-337.

Cross-listed as Social Work 47-470.*

*A cross-listed course is a course offered by two departments at the same time. Women's Studies majors are encouraged to enrol under the Women's Studies section (53-), but may enrol in the other department's section if the Women's Studies section is full and it will still count towards their major requirements.

These courses may be taken as an Arts credit or a Social Science credit. Students wishing to make these courses an Arts credit must come to the Women's Studies office and complete a DARS Exemption form. Please visit the Women's Studies website for complete course descriptions and pre-requisites.
